Victory Team Announces Leadership in Sportsmen, Outdoorsmen, Off-Roaders Coalitions

(Sacramento, CA) – Today, Victory 2006, the grassroots organization of the California Republican Party, announced the formation of the Sportsmen, Outdoorsmen and Off-Roaders coalitions. Rodney Stanhope will serve as statewide coalitions chairman for these coalitions which are dedicated to electing Republicans to office at all levels of government throughout California.

“Victory 2006 is proud to announce the addition of Rodney Stanhope to our leadership team as we bring together an unprecedented group of California sportsmen and outdoorsmen dedicated to electing Republican candidates across the state. We look forward to his leadership and working together to move California forward,” said State Coalitions Director Anna Bryson.

Stanhope brings extensive political grassroots campaign experience to this effort. Most recently, he served as statewide volunteer coordinator for controller candidate Tony Strickland, and prior to that, he organized volunteers and sportsman coalitions for former Secretary of State Bill Jones. In addition, he coordinated volunteer efforts for both Sacramento city council candidate Craig DeLuz and congressional candidate Jeff Rainforth. Stanhope's community volunteerism also extends into the non-profit sector where he has served as Northern California Coordinator for Yellow Ribbon America and co-founded “Toys for the Troops Kids” in Sacramento.

It is estimated that annually over 3.5 million Californians participate in recreational activities involving outdoor sports, hunting, off-road vehicles, fishing and other types. Victory 2006 and the California Republican Party are committed to engaging these groups, activating their members, and electing Republican candidates who share the same values and vision for the future of California.
